1. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow: (1×5=5)

Camels are very useful animals. They are called 'ships of the desert'. This is because camels are used as transport in the sandy desert. The desert is their natural living place. Their thick, padded feet are good for walking in the soft sand. They can go where cars and trucks cannot go. Some people also come to the farm to take camel rides. Camels can also walk for many days without food or water. They love to eat the dry, thorny bushes that grow in the desert. Camels store food in their humps.

Camels also give people food. Many people use camel's milk instead of cow's or goat's milk. They drink milk, and also make cheese and curd from it. Camels live for 25 to 30 years. When a camel dies, its skin is used to make leather for shoes, bags, and other things, and its bones are made into jewellery.
