Q 1. Read the passage carefully and answer ANY FIVE of the following questions: (1×5=5)

The great advantage of early rising is its good start to our day's work. The early risers have done much hard work before other men have gotten out of bed. In the early morning, the task is typically completed better than at other hours of the day since the air is fresh and there are fewer sounds and other natural distractions without any disturbance. In many cases, the early risers also find time to exercise in the fresh morning air, which supplies them with a fund of energy that will last until dusk.

The early risers could go to bed at a proper time since they know they will have enough time to do the job for the day thoroughly by getting started so early. They will have plenty of downtime in the evening before their scheduled bedtime so they never hurry to complete their day's work. After going to bed for several hours before midnight, when sleep and energy for the new day are at their best, a good night's sleep and waking up early the next morning in good health is quite refreshing and helps to reduce stress and do better at work and school.
